Four Points Property Management participates in a Thanksgiving Food Drive to benefit the Camillus House Foundation.

This Thanksgiving, Four Points Property Management has partnered with Camillus House, a South Florida organization vowing to end homelessness in South Florida, by collecting and delivering donations that benefit the largest homelessness and hunger relief organization in South Florida.

From November 6 through November 20, Four Points Property Management's participating Community Associations throughout South Florida will serve as collection points for donations of non-perishable food items and canned goods to help feed those in need this Thanksgiving and throughout the Holiday Season. Four Points Property Management's staff will personally deliver the donations to Camillus House.

"Through Four Points Property Management's Thanksgiving Food Drive, we're able to support our local community, and connect the people who are able to give with those that need assistance the most this time of the year," said Marc Rodriguez, President and CEO of Four Points Property Management. "We are committed to people helping people and our company will continue to make a difference as an active leader in our community."

Camillus House, a non-profit corporation, has been serving South Florida since 1960. Camillus House and Camillus Health Concern, its sister organization; employ more than 170 staff members. Camillus House has continued to provide, on an annual basis, more than 360,000 free meals, housing for 1,000 families, 89% of the people they treat remain successful in substance abuse programs, and 27,550 medical encounters are provided to over 5,200 total patients.

Donations of canned goods and non-perishable food items for Thanksgiving meals may be dropped off at our corporate office or at any of our participating communities between November 6 and November 20, we can also arrange for pickup of these items.
